1795 Boundary Agreement Summary

Frederick County Land Records – Book WR 13 (1795)

Subject: Boundary settlement for lands including the tract “High Germany.”

Purpose of the Agreement

The document records a mutual agreement between several neighboring landowners to formally establish and recognize the true dividing lines between their properties.

By the late 1700s many Maryland tracts had overlapping or uncertain surveys. Rather than litigate in court, neighbors would hire surveyors and agree to fixed lines, then record the agreement in the county land records so it would bind future owners.

The agreement states that the parties met, reviewed the existing surveys, and accepted a specific boundary line to settle disputes or uncertainty between their lands.

Main Land Tract

The land involved references a tract called:

“High Germany”

This name was commonly used in northern Frederick County for areas settled by German-speaking immigrants (High Germans) in the mid-1700s.

The tract would have been located in what is today the northern Frederick County / southern Carroll County region.

Relevant modern areas likely include communities near:

- Taneytown
- Union Bridge
- Keymar
- Middleburg

These areas were still Frederick County in 1795; Carroll County was not created until 1837.

Key People Involved

The document involves a large cluster of German-origin families who were neighbors.

Primary Signers / Landholders

Among those appearing in the agreement:

- Nicholas Dill
- Daniel Stonifer / Stonipher
- Frederick Yingling

- John Dotterer
- Abraham Yingling
- Henry Kuntz (Koontz)
- Henry O'Hara
- Peter Erb
- Ludwig Miller
- Conrad Kisinger / Kissinger
- Andrew Rule
- Jacob Suter / Sutour
- John Erb
- Mary Ann Long
- John Groff

These are the principal landholders acknowledging the agreed boundary.

Other Individuals Mentioned

Additional neighbors or referenced property holders include:

- John Carroll
- Rudy Brubaker
- Samuel Owings
- John Summan (possibly Sumner / Zimmerman type spelling)
- Andrew Long
- Joseph Dyer
- Jacob Feaser
- Martin Stuter / Studer / Stuter

These names appear as adjacent tract owners, witnesses, or survey references.

What the Agreement Actually Does

The document essentially states that:

1. Several adjoining landowners had uncertain or disputed boundary lines.
2. They agreed to establish fixed division lines between their tracts.
3. The lines were surveyed and accepted by all parties.
4. Each party signed or acknowledged the agreement.
5. The agreement was recorded in the Frederick County court land records so that:
 - future owners must honor the lines
 - the boundary dispute cannot be reopened.

This was a common legal solution in the 1700s when original patent surveys overlapped.

Genealogical Importance

This document is actually very valuable for genealogy.

It proves that in 1795 these families lived as immediate neighbors: Lutheran / Reformed families neighbors

- Kuntz / Koontz
- Yingling
- Dotterer
- Erb
- Kissinger
- Brubaker
- Feaser
- Groff
- Long
- Suter / Sauter / Souders

That cluster strongly reflects the German immigrant settlement zone north of Frederick town.

Interesting Observation

The mix of names suggests a German Reformed / Lutheran farming neighborhood.

Typical Palatine surnames present:

- Kuntz
- Yingling
- Erb
- Kissinger
- Dotterer
- Brubaker
- Groff
- Feaser
- Suter

Most of those families originally migrated from Pennsylvania German settlements into Frederick County between 1740-1765.

Core Tract: High Germany Landholders on the tract in 1782 included:

- Henry Coontz (Kuntz) – 194 acres
- Nicholas Dill – 278 acres
- Peter Erb – 450 acres
- Daniel Stonecypher (Stonifer) – 139 acres
- Martin Study (Stuter) – 150 acres
- Jacob Keefer – 178 acres
- John Midaaur Sr. – 100 acres
- Andrew Clunt – 146 acres

Core Tract: High Germany Landholders on the tract in 1782 observation

Names overlap almost perfectly with the people in the 1795 boundary agreement.

Map of the Farm Cluster (Reconstructed Layout)

This diagram shows the probable neighborhood arrangement around Double Pipe Creek.

Distance between farms was usually .5 mile to 2 miles.

Where This Map Fits Today

The High Germany tract cluster appears to have been in what is now:

- western Carroll County
- near the Frederick County line

Most likely between:

- Taneytown, Maryland
- Union Bridge, Maryland
- Keymar, Maryland

The area follows the valley of Double Pipe Creek, which was a major German settlement corridor.
